FOREWORD

The Bureau of Justice Statistics is pleased to announce the publication of the Criminal Justice Data Directory by ICPSR. Since 1977, BJS and its predecessor organization have sponsored the National Criminal Justice Data Archive project at ICPSR to partially satisfy BJS's legislative mandate to disseminate criminal justice data. The main focus of the archive project is to encourage and facilitate secondary analysis of BJS-sponsored data collections and of other relevant datasets. While holdings have increased at a steady pace, the archive cannot hope to acquire and process all datasets of relevance to criminal justice research questions. The archive typically acquires datasets of broad interest which can be applied to a number of issues, but a number of important questions can only be studied with access to data outside the archive's holdings. In order to facilitate crime-related research in these areas, ICPSR has prepared this directory to help researchers find and acquire relevant data. I believe this is an important extension of the archive's activities and am pleased to announce publication of this document.

INTRODUCTION

The Criminal Justice Archive and Information Network (CJAIN) has been in operation since 1977 at the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research. Funded currently by the Bureau of Justice Statistics in the Department of Justice (Grant No. 82-BJ-CX-K001), it is designed to provide three basic services to analysts, policymakers, and researchers in the criminal justice fields: development of computer-readable data resources for the quantitative study of crime and the criminal justice system through archiving and dissemination; technical assistance in selecting appropriate data and the computational hardware and software resources to use them in an efficient and effective manner; and training in the methods of social science data analysis appropriate to analysis of the data.

During the past five years the CJAIN staff has assembled a large collection of data relevant to its mission in the ICPSR archive. For a variety of reasons, it has never been the intention of the project to acquire and process all possible data of relevance to crime and the criminal justice system in Ann Arbor. Limitations on the availability of resources would never have permitted such an ambitious undertaking. Some data are currently housed in other archives where access is open and available; acquisition of such data would simply involve a duplication of effort. Furthermore, some data are archived at locations in which a specially-trained staff is available to provide advice, consultation, and special tabulations where considerations of protection of the confidentiality of individuals is an issue.

Much of the information about the availability of data from these other sources has not been available to researchers in an assembled form. The Criminal Justice Data Directory is designed to serve as such a central resource for analysts, policymakers, and researchers in the criminal justice field. It is a guide to quantitative, computer-readable resources relevant to the study of crime and the criminal justice system, indicating their availability and general content.

The directory can be used as a handy reference to criminal justice data, indicating where additional information can be obtained about the detailed characteristics of specific datasets. As is the case with any well-documented computer-readable dataset, the complete information about the contents of a dataset, the research design under which it was collected, and other relevant processing information can be found in its codebook. The reader will have to request such information from the institution from which the data are available. A list of all such sources is appended to the directory.

The directory is actually a living document of sorts in that it also exists itself in computer-readable form as a SPIRES subfile on The University of Michigan computing system (MTS), where it can be accessed remotely for computerized searches. This first published version of the directory contains descriptions of 434 datasets which existed in the subfile as of October, 1982. Future printed versions of the directory will be published as the size of the computer-readable database grows.

In this regard, the CJAIN staff would appreciate receiving information about the existence and availability of other computer-readable data relevant to the study of crime and the criminal justice system. This information will be added to the SPIRES database as it is received, and it will be published in subsequent versions of the directory.

Any project of this magnitude must necessarily involve the contributions of several staff members. The principal investigator for the CJAIN project is Dr. Michael W. Traugott, Director of Resource Development for the ICPSR. Dr. Christopher Innes has had direct super-

The second section, DATASET DESCRIPTIONS, is a listing of all 434 records or datasets as they presently appear in the SPIRES CJD subfile. If one were to use SPIRES to retrieve all 434 records, the result would be identical to the one appearing on pages 1-100, with the exception that the records have been put into alphabetical order by Principal Investigator to aid the reader in locating a particular investigator.

Section three, located on page 101, is a list of all keywords used to describe the datasets in the CJD Directory. There are a total of 81 keywords. If the reader does not have a particular investigator in mind but wishes to locate all the datasets available in the directory on a particular topic, this may be accomplished by examining the list of keywords. Once one or more keywords have been selected as descriptive or related to the topic in question, the reader should turn to the KEYWORD INDEX (section four) beginning on page 103.

Section four contains all the keywords used to describe the datasets in the CJD Directory. They are arranged in alphabetical order. The reader should locate the keyword he or she has chosen. Listed below the keyword are the titles of the datasets which have been described by the keyword and the page on which the description of the dataset appears.

Section five, the final section located on page 151, is simply a summary of all the sources cited in the datasets. There are a fairly small number of sources as each source offers a sizeable number of datasets.

PRINCIPAL INVESTIGATORS CITED IN THE CJD DIRECTORY

The following is a list in alphabetical order of the Principal Investigators cited in the CJD Directory. The reader may wish to utilize this section to become familiar with the many contributors of the datasets contained in this directory or, if desired, may scan the list to locate a particular investigator. Descriptions of all datasets in the CJD Directory follow this section and are in alphabetical order by Principal Investigator. We wish to take this opportunity to offer our sincere appreciation to the many contributors without whose efforts this directory would not have been possible.

DATASET DESCRIPTIONS
(Sequenced by Principal Investigator)

TITLE = ABC/Chilton 8315
 INVESTIGATOR = ABC
 SUBJECT = A survey of 856 respondents' opinions on Watergate. Taken on 8/7/79. Questions pertain to the respondents' feeling in 1979 as opposed to 1974 about the importance of Watergate, Nixon's guilt, whether or not he and the Watergate conspirators should be pardoned, the impact the incident had upon the national and international prestige of the President, and whether such a scandal could happen again. Complete question text and survey number available from ICPSR
 KEYWORD = federal/political/white collar crime
 SOURCE = The Roper Center, The University of Connecticut, Box U164R, Storrs, CT 06268

TITLE = ABC/WP 8846
 INVESTIGATOR = ABC/Washington Post
 SUBJECT = A survey of 1,533 people taken from 5/18/81 to 5/20/81. Questions pertain to various moral issues such as abortion, prayer in schools, the death penalty and the legalization of marihuana. Complete question text and survey number available from ICPSR
 KEYWORD = capital punishment/drugs/murder
 SOURCE = The Roper Center, The University of Connecticut, Box U164R, Storrs, Ct 06268

TITLE = ABC/WP 875602
 INVESTIGATOR = ABC/Washington Post
 SUBJECT = A survey of 1,872 people including a black oversample of 446. Taken from 2/26/81 to 3/6/81. There are 9 questions about violence committed by blacks in the U.S. Questions pertain to the chances of violent protest, treatment of blacks, fear of crime, and gun control. Complete question text and survey number available from ICPSR

TITLE = Survey of American Prisons and Jails, 1979
 INVESTIGATOR = ABT Associates
 SUBJECT = The survey consists of two parts, a survey of state and federal adult correctional systems and a survey of community based pre-release facilities. The survey attempted to more precisely assess institutional conditions in state and federal prisons and halfway houses. Questionnaires were mailed to 559 federal and state prisons and 402 community based pre-release facilities. The response rate was 100%. Variables include inmate counts by sex and security class, age of facility and rated capacity, spatial density, composition of inmate population by race/age/offense type, inmate labor and earnings, and race/age/sex characteristics of prison staff. The federal and state prison survey contains 292 variables for 559 cases. The community based pre-release facility survey contains 207 variables for 402 cases

TITLE = MISC ALMONDUR
INVESTIGATOR = Almond, G.A./Verba, S./National Opinion Research Center
SUBJECT = A survey of 970 respondents' opinions on the influence an individual has on changing a law or regulation. Taken in March, 1960. Questions pertain to the ability of an individual to prevent the passage of a law that he considers to be unjust and the likelihood of such an effort/ whether violence should be used to effect change/ and whether or not the respondent would receive fair treatment if he were arrested. Complete question text and survey number available from ICPSR

TITLE = Follow-up Study of Patients Treated Under NARA I and NARA III
INVESTIGATOR = Amsel, Z.
SUBJECT = A study to determine the post-treatment status of narcotic addicts treated under Titles I and III of NARA. Drug-related variables include drug first used, amount consumed, cost, current use, polydrug use, treatment, prognosis regarding drugs, and opinions about the quality and effectiveness of treatment received. Other variables include religion, primary and secondary languages spoken at home, family and marital history, education, employment and occupation, financial status, living arrangements, socialization, military service, and self-management scale. Variables specific to criminal justice include legal status at admission to treatment, age at first arrest, and type of offense. 829 cases

TITLE = Monitoring the Future: A Continuing Study of the Lifestyles and Values of Youth, 1980
INVESTIGATOR = Bachman, J.G./Johnston, L.D./O'Malley, P.
SUBJECT = This study explores changes in values, behaviors and lifestyle orientations of contemporary American youth. Every year since 1975, high school seniors in a random sample of American high schools have been asked to fill out a questionnaire in which the topics most extensively covered are drug use and related attitudes. Other subjects covered include government, social institutions, race relations, changing roles for women, educational aspirations, occupational aims, and marital and family plans as well as a variety of background and demographic factors
KEYWORD = drugs/juvenile/discrimination/political/race
SOURCE = ICPSR, P.O. Box 1248, Ann Arbor, MI 48106

TITLE = A Study of Philadelphia's Criminal Justice System
INVESTIGATOR = Barlett, D./Steele, J.
SUBJECT = A comprehensive study of how Philadelphia's criminal justice system handled 1,374 violent crimes. Data include background information concerning the defendant, victim, and crime, whether bail was set, amount of bail, the final disposition of each indictment by the court, the sentence imposed on each indictment, plea, and relationship, between defendant and victim
KEYWORD = victim/court/bail/disposition/sentence/trial/law enforcement/violence/city/plea bargaining

TITLE = Alcohol Abuse in Heroin Addicts
INVESTIGATOR = Barr, H. L.
SUBJECT = This 1974-1975 study of current and former patients of Pennsylvania treatment centers is divided into two files, one for intake interviews (N=1,107), and the other for follow-up interviews (N=764). It is designed to document and investigate the occurrence of alcohol abuse in drug addicts and its effects on their treatment and rehabilitation. Variables include information on the respondents' living arrangements, marital status, employment, mobility, substance use patterns, current legal status, number of arrests relative to onset of drug use and/or heavy drinking, type of crimes, number of crimes, age at first arrest, duration of incarceration, and perception of frequency of arrest as compared to others guilty of similar crimes

TITLE = National Crime Surveys: National Sample, 1973-1978: Complete Sample, Incident-Level File, Person-Level File

INVESTIGATOR = Bureau of Justice Statistics

SUBJECT = A national survey of households from a stratified multistage cluster procedure which assesses the frequency and character of criminal victimization. The data are organized by collection quarter into 20 separate datasets. Each is hierarchically structured into household, person and incident levels

KEYWORD = assault/felony/law enforcement/violence/police/rape/victim/property crime

TITLE = National Crime Surveys: Cities 1972-1975 (Complete Sample), Cities Sample 1972-1975 (Person-Level File)

INVESTIGATOR = Bureau of Justice Statistics

SUBJECT = A survey of households to assess the frequency and character of criminal victimization. The data were collected from the U.S. Bureau of Census from 1972 to 1975 in 26 different cities. Contains detailed information about household and personal victimization in each sampled household, demographic characteristics, type and severity of crime, and injuries or losses. A subfile was created of person-level cases

KEYWORD = assault/rape/victim/felony/police/law enforcement/violence/property crime/homicide

SOURCE = ICPSR, P.O. Box 1248, Ann Arbor, MI 48106

TITLE = Survey of Inmates of State Correctional Facilities and Census of State Adult Correctional Facilities, 1974

INVESTIGATOR = Bureau of Justice Statistics

SUBJECT = This dataset contains both a national census of 592 state correctional facilities and a survey of 9,040 inmates. The Census of Correctional Facilities data include: the number of inmates housed, number and categories of staff employees, availability of recreational facilities for inmates, and types of educational programs offered to inmates. The Survey of Inmates includes data on socio-economic and demographic characteristics of inmates, length of time in prison, and type of offense

KEYWORD = correctional facility/prison/sentence/offender/economy/inmate/census/personnel/rehabilitation/state

SOURCE = ICPSR, P.O. Box 1248, Ann Arbor, MI 48106

TITLE = Juvenile Detention and Correctional Facility Census, 1977

INVESTIGATOR = Bureau of Justice Statistics

SUBJECT = A census of 922 state and local juvenile detention and correctional facilities. The census includes information on facility and payroll expenditures, types of programs offered, staff levels, and information on inmate sex, age range, and detention status
KEYWORD = correctional facility/juvenile/census/expenditure/personnel/offender/rehabilitation/state/local

TITLE = Illegal Corporate Behavior, 1979, Parts 1 and 2
INVESTIGATOR = Clinard, M./Yeager, P.
SUBJECT = The study concentrates on an empirical investigation of the 582 largest publicly owned corporations in the United States: 477 manufacturing, 18 wholesale, 66 retail, and 21 service. Corporations in banking, insurance, transportation, communication, and utilities have been excluded because of the unusual nature of these businesses. The annual sales for 1975 of the corporations studied ranged from $300 million to more than $45 billion, with an average sales volume of $1.7 billion for parent firms. The data covered all enforcement actions that could be secured, initiated, or imposed by 24 federal agencies during 1975 and 1976. Variables include number and types of violations, investigation agency, and sanctions imposed. In addition, the researchers collected economic data on the corporations as well as industry-level economic data. These are presented in a separate data file. The variables in the Economic Data File include Net Income/Total Assets, Working Capital/Total Assets, and Sales/Total Assets. It

Consists of 124 variables for 582 cases, while the Violations/Sanctions file consists of 132 variables for 2,052 cases

TITLE = Characteristics of High and Low Crime Neighborhoods in Atlanta, 1980
INVESTIGATOR = Greenberg, S.
SUBJECT = This study examines the question of how some urban neighborhoods maintain a low crime rate despite their proximity and similarity to relatively high crime areas. The data is divided into two files. The Atlanta PLAN file contains information on every parcel of land within the six neighborhoods in the study. The variables include ownership, type of land use, physical characteristics, characteristics of structures, and assessed value of each parcel of land within the six neighborhoods. There are 9,121 cases and approximately 81 variables in the file. The Atlanta SURVEY file contains the results of a household survey administered to a stratified random sample of households within each of the study neighborhoods. Variables include respondents' attitudes and behavior related to the neighborhood, fear of crime, avoidance and protective measures, and victimization experiences. The data were collected between August and October of 1980. There are 523 cases and approximately 713 variables

TITLE = Evaluation of Pretrial Settlement Conference, Dade County, Florida, Criminal Court, 1979
INVESTIGATOR = Kerstetter, W.A.
SUBJECT = This study reports on the implementation of a proposal to involve, on a voluntary basis, victims, defendants, and police in judicial plea negotiation conferences in Dade County, Florida. The data consist of eight parts. Parts One to Three (Defendants, Victims, and Police Files), consist of questionnaires containing 140 variables for 320 cases in the Defendant File, 153 variables for 353 cases in the Victim File, and 95 variables for 431 cases in the Police File. Part Four is a Conference Observation File containing 215 variables for 533 cases. During the pretrial settlement conference, an observer wrote in sequence the verbal behavior. After the session the observer made some subjective ratings, provided descriptive data about the conclusion of the session, and classified comments into one of eight substantive categories. Part Five is a Case Information File drawn from court records and contains 91 variables for 1,073 cases

TITLE = Political Violence in the United States
INVESTIGATOR = Levy, S.
SUBJECT = The purpose of this newspaper sample study was to examine the levels and changes in the levels of violence in the United States for the period 1819-1968. A politically violent event was defined as an attack on an official or group of officials for any reason, or an attack on an individual for political or social reasons. Three indices of political violence were used: the number of violent events, the number of deaths resulting from the events, and the number of injuries resulting from the events. Additional data collected include: date of event, nature of target, number of attackers, level of violence by attacker, violence by a group of attackers, motivation or reasons for attack, injury to target, property damage, injury to attacker, type of attacker, and size of the newspaper

TITLE = Decision-Related Research on the Organization of Service Delivery Systems in Metropolitan Areas: Police Protection
INVESTIGATOR = Ostrom, E.
SUBJECT = This study of police services includes five major clusters of variables: service conditions, the legal structure, organizational arrangements, manpower levels, and ad expenditure levels. Data were collected in the local jurisdictions in a sample of 80 SMSA's and was related to specific services including patrol, traffic control, criminal investigation, radio communications, adult pretrial detention, entry-level training and crime laboratory analysis. One datafile contains information for 1761 police agencies. The second contains information for 1885 service areas which are mutually exclusive geographical divisions of each SMSA which are the recipients of the police services

TITLE = Survey of California Prison Inmates, 1976

INVESTIGATOR = Peterson, M.A./Polich, S./Chaiken, J.M.

SUBJECT = This survey uses the self-report technique with anonymous, self-administered questionnaires distributed to groups of 10-20 inmates at a time. The survey obtained detailed information about the crimes committed by prisoners prior to their incarceration. Variables examine the characteristics of repeatedly arrested or convicted offenders (recidivists) as well as offenders reporting the greatest number of serious crimes (habitual criminals). The variables include crimes committed leading to incarceration, rates of criminal activity, and social-psychological scales for analyzing motivations to commit crimes. The collection contains three files: the survey data, the documentation provided by the Rand Corporation, and frequency counts for the variables in the study

TITLE = Transitional Aid Research Project (TARP), 1976-1977

INVESTIGATOR = Rossi, P.

SUBJECT = TARP was an experiment conducted in Texas and Georgia in 1976-1977. Stratified random samples of inmates were assigned, at the time of release from prison, to experimental and control groups. The groups varied in the amount of money and job placement services they received upon their release. Data include each inmate's prison history, data from four interviews, state arrest data, record of TARP payments, social security wages and parole records. There are 1,590 variables for each of 1,975 cases in the Texas file and 1,921 variables for each of 2,007 cases in the Georgia file

TITLE = Probation Statistics (Forms 3, 3a, and 9)
INVESTIGATOR = Statistical Analysis and Reports
Division/Administrative Office of the United States Courts
SUBJECT = The probation statistical reporting program covers all persons placed under the supervision of Federal probation officers. This includes those placed on probation by U.S. district judges and by U.S. magistrates. It also includes a growing group of persons who are referred to the probation office for supervision by U.S. attorney. These pretrial diversion cases involve young persons who have had no prior contact with law enforcement or the courts. Also included in the program are those persons released by the U.S. Parole Commission from federal institutions for parole or mandatory release supervision by probation officers, as well as persons placed on special parole under provisions of the Drug Abuse and Prevention Act of 1970. Reports on persons received for supervision are provided by each probation office to the Statistical Analysis and Reports Division. The types of data recorded on these reports include the district and office number, the docket or institution register number, the type of case, the date received from supervision, and demographic data (sex, race, age, marital status and education). Also, prior criminal record and type of pre-sentence investigation are reported. When supervision ends, the probation officer reports the conditions under which the person was removed from supervision. If a violation of the rules or conditions of probation or parole should be the reason for the removal, the type of violation is recorded. In the event a new crime has been committed, any new sentences or sanctions connected with these violations are shown on the reports. If there is no violation or the person under supervision is removed from supervision before his term is completed because of satisfactory behavior, this is also documented

TITLE = Criminal Statistics (JS-1, 2, and 3)
INVESTIGATOR = Statistical Analysis and Reports
Division/Administrative Office of the United States Courts
SUBJECT = The statistics on criminal cases are reported on cards prepared from a 'snap-out' docket set (A.O. 256). The clerk of court records the district and office number where the case was filed, the docket number, how the case was commenced (by indictment or information) and the name of each defendant. The offense charged (all counts) including the statutory offense citations are fully described. Further, pursuant to the Speedy Trial Act of 1974, data for speedy trial recording are supplied. At the time of disposition for each defendant, the clerk prepares a card showing the initial plea and, for those convicted, the last plea, together with the pertinent dates required for the Speedy Trial Act. When a defendant goes to trial, the outcome of a court or jury trial is likewise reported. The offense and type of sentence imposed is reported for defendants who were convicted.

For all defendants disposed of, information concerning representation by counsel, including an appointment made under the provisions of the Criminal Justice Act of 1964, is obtained. The JS-2 and JS-3 cards and a control sheet for cases filed and disposed of are submitted monthly.

For convicted defendants, the following additional data are entered: sex, race, age, prior criminal record and the type of presentence investigation (complete, limited, or none made at all)

TITLE = Pretrial Release Practices in the United States, 1976-1978
INVESTIGATOR = Toborg, M.A.
SUBJECT = This study focuses on four major topics: release, court appearance, pretrial criminality, and impact of pretrial release programs. The study is limited to adult defendants processed through state and local trial courts, and to pretrial release rather than pretrial intervention or diversion programs. Part One is an analysis of release practices and outcomes in eight jurisdictions. Part Two examines the impact of the existence of pretrial release programs on release, court appearance and pretrial release outcomes. Part Three analyzes one site that never had a pretrial release program and one site where a program had ended

TITLE = New York City Court Employment Project Evaluation Study, 1976-1979
INVESTIGATOR = Vera Institute of Justice, New York City
SUBJECT = CEP was designed to divert accused offenders from routine court procedures of criminal prosecution, sentencing, and possible incarceration, and to place them into jobs, training, or vocationally-oriented counseling services. Eligible defendants must agree to attend mandatory counseling sessions, devise and execute an individual plan for securing training and employment, and avoid arrest and conviction during their participation. Charges are dismissed by the court if, at the end of the six-month period, CEP counselors determine that the defendant has participated successfully. This study compares a control group of non-CEP offenders with an experimental group of CEP participants. Variables include age, sex, race and charges against the defendant, previous training and work experience, satisfaction with CEP services, attendance at counseling sessions, type of employment found, job attendance, and subsequent arrests and convictions for 666 subjects

TITLE = Survey of Judges on the Role of Courts in American Society
INVESTIGATOR = Yankelovich/Skelly/White
SUBJECT = This survey focuses on issues of caseload management rather than on issues of policy-making. Federal and state judges in five districts (Milwaukee/Eastern Wisconsin, South Carolina, Philadelphia/Eastern Pennsylvania, Albuquerque/ New Mexico, and Los Angeles/California) were questioned about the amount of time spent on certain types of cases, their techniques for reducing or more expeditiously handling heavy caseloads, and their suggestions for extra-judicial dispute settlement processes that could serve as alternatives to courts. The 250 variables for each of the 104 respondents include legal education and experience, types of cases heard in the previous year, percent time spent on particular types of cases, characteristics of cases requiring excessive time, and techniques for caseload management
KEYWORD = judge/national/federal/court/state/trial

LIST OF KEYWORDS USED IN THE CJD DIRECTORY

The Criminal Justice Data Directory is a SPIRES subfile created by the CJAIN project staff. One of the elements used to organize the datasets in the SPIRES subfile is the keyword. Keywords are utilized to catalog the datasets in the CJD Directory and to search and retrieve specific datasets on-line by selecting keywords which describe the desired datasets. Below is a list of keywords the CJAIN project staff has compiled to describe and catalog the datasets in the CJD Directory. The reader may browse this list to locate one or more keywords related to the content of the datasets desired. In the next section, there is the list of keywords used to catalog the datasets in the directory in alphabetical order. Each keyword is followed by the titles of the datasets described by the keyword and the page on which the complete description of the dataset can be found.
